WA flu vax change puts patients first

PHARMACISTS in Western Australia will be allowed to provide influenza vaccinations to children 10-years-old and over, following a decision by the State Government.

Pharmacy Guild of Australia WA Branch President, Andrew Ngeow, welcomed the Government's "commonsense measure" to boost herd immunity across the state.

"This measure is about putting patients and public health first," he said.

"We know hospital admissions due to influenza are up, and there have been tragic outcomes this flu season.

"It is impossible to ignore the evidence.

"This action being taken is very appropriate and effective immediately"

The decision comes a day after the WA Department of Health released its weekly winter respiratory illness and influenza data showing the number of flu-related deaths in the state almost doubled in the week to 18 Jun, jumping from 15 to 29 for the year to date.

In the same seven-day period the number of laboratory confirmed cases in the state jumped by more than 50% of the annual total (9,016), while an additional 79,000 publicly funded doses of the vaccine were distributed.

At this stage last year WA had recorded 1,399 confirmed flu infections and four deaths.

The move follows a similar decision expanding pharmacist vaccination announced last month by the Tasmanian Govt (PD 20 May).

Pharmaceutical Society of Australia (PSA) WA Branch President, Dr Fei Sim, welcomed the decision, saying it provided pharmacists with an opportunity to highlight their expertise and training to better protect the community against vaccine-preventable diseases.

"The administration of vaccines by pharmacists complements the excellent work done by GPs, nurses, Indigenous health workers and other immunisers," she said.

"It increases the immunisation rate and has a positive effect on people's health in Western Australia."

Dispensary Corner

DISPENSING free samples from behind the counter in a pharmacy is usually frowned upon, but last weekend Sweny's in Dublin was doing just that.

Famed for its lemon-scented soap, the store featured prominently in James Joyce's epic novel, Ulysses, earning it a cult following (PD 03 Apr).

Located in the heart of the Irish capital, Sweny's was facing closure after its landlord announced a rent increase.

Unlike most pharmacies, Sweny's has given up on prescription medicines and is now a volunteer-run museum, with no real business plan.

However, the pharmacy has been saved, and Joyce would have appreciated its saviour, Writers' Tears Premium Whiskey.

Literary fan and founder of the whiskey brand, Bernard Walsh, agreed to stump-up the money to save the pharmacy.

"The role played by the volunteers who have kept Sweny's open for the last 10 years has been immense in preserving Irish literary heritage for Dubliners and people the world over to experience," he said.

"They both need and deserve our support if they are to carry on. All of us at Writers' Tears are proud to play our part."

To honour Writers' Tears' role in saving the pharmacy and the hero of Ulysses, Leopold Bloom, last Sun, visitors to the store were treated to a dram of whiskey.

Three cheers for a happy ending!

Horsham named Priceline of the Year

API CEO & MD Richard Vincent (left) with Priceline Pharmacy Store of the Year team from Horsham: Chloe McDonald, Cobie McQueen, and Stuart Hall

PRICELINE Pharmacy Horsham has been named as the Australian Pharmaceutical Industries franchise's Store of the Year.

The Victorian store operated by Stuart Hall and Cobie McQueen has been dubbed the "most successful Priceline Pharmacy", having claimed the national Store of the Year gong in 2015 and the Victorian/Tasmanian Store of the Year in 2016.

Priceline Pharmacy Horsham joined the network in Mar 2013 and its owners pride themselves on being an integral part of the greater Horsham community, sponsoring the Horsham District Football League, the Wimmera Netball Association, and the Horsham football and netball clubs.

Woonona Priceline Pharmacy took home the Rising Star Store of the Year Award, while John Youssef from Menai Priceline Pharmacy was named Pharmacist of the Year.

Marie Spataro from the Bourke St Mall (Vic) store and Coralie Evans from Sutherland (NSW) shared the Retail Manager of the Year gong.
