Modeus wins SA tender to roll out its HS8

HEALTHCARE software company Modeus has been selected as the preferred supplier for the Electronic Controlled Drug Register for SA Pharmacy Sites tender issued by South Australia Health.

Modeus will roll out its HS8 Controlled Medication Register application across the SA pharmacy sites.

HS8 is a controlled drug register platform used in over 60 hospitals that integrates with its systems including iPharmacy, Patient Administration Systems and Active Directory to help "remove duplication and to make workflows quicker and more accurate," shared CEO Carl Zufi.

"This allows hospitals to transition from paper-based controlled drug registers to an intelligent platform that decreases the time spent on controlled drug record keeping, and gives pharmacists more hours for patient care.

"HS8 has safety features to prevent medication errors, closed- loop governance and security to ensure the movement of controlled medications are tracked and accounted for," Zufi explained.

Michael Bakker, SA Pharmacy's Digital Health Portfolio Lead, explained, "we are pleased to be partnering with Modeus to deliver HS8 to our network of South Australian Public Hospital Pharmacies due to HS8's broad functional capabilities, product maturity, ease of use and solid feedback from hospitals currently using HS8 in other states".

"SA Health is determined to lead the way in best practice medication management solutions, and by future-proofing controlled drug workflow management via implementing the HS8 platform, we are confident that this will result in improved efficiencies, and medication safety & compliance for the SA Health network."

FARMER marries...a pharmacist!

For 30 years, Spring Ridge, NSW, has been without a pharmacy and a doctor, leaving those unwell in its population of 400 to face long drives to access healthcare.

Now, that has all changed thanks to the love story of farmer Andrew Mills and pharmacist Chloe Kay who settled in Spring Ridge.

Once settled Kay decided to buy the general store and add a pharmacy to it.

That was only a few months ago, but the little shop has made a big difference, she said.

After renovating the general store and getting the right approvals, Kay was able to bring medicine to her new town.

The establishment of the pharmacy has led to a doctor working part-time out of a room beside the shop front.

"There has never ever been a pharmacy in Spring Ridge, so for one to pop up, it's a lot for people to take in," Mills said.

"Everyone is very excited as it's groundbreaking," Mills said.

"People don't have to travel hundreds of kilometres to see a GP and have to wait potentially weeks to get an appointment.

"Then to go to the pharmacist and get what they need next door will be incredible."

Dr Owen Boyd, who arrived in town as part of a 12-month pilot jointly run with the Primary Network, said," the opportunity here was great because Chloe is essentially an entrepreneur".

"She makes things happen."

SHPA's growth strategy

EMBARKING on a growth agenda for the next 12 months, the Society of Hospital Pharmacists of Australia (SHPA) has released today its Transformation 2024 strategy, HERE.

Launched via a microsite, the Transformation 2024, President Tom Simpson explained, "takes our venerable organisation into a new era, outlining SHPA's new initiatives including expanding education, developing new digital platforms, driving deprescribing awareness and championing and credentialling partnered pharmacist prescribing".

"New practice recognition pathways are a centrepiece of Transformation 2024, designed to help practitioners of all levels navigate an increasingly mobile professional landscape.

"This national recognition is important as the walls between care settings fall and more pharmacy care is delivered through speciality practice in interdisciplinary teams, and younger pharmacists seek broader opportunities."

Vice President Dr Kate O'Hara says SHPA's identity is evolving to meet the moment to help "move between increasingly collaborative care settings".

UK's LGAs call to ban single-use vapes

COUNCILS in England and Wales have called on the UK government to ban the sale of single-use vapes by 2024 on both environmental and health grounds.

The Local Government Association (LGA) said 1.3 million disposable vapes were thrown away every week.

They were a hazard for waste and litter collection and caused fires in bin lorries.

The LGA explained single-use vapes were designed as one unit so batteries cannot be separated from the plastic, making them almost impossible to recycle without going through special treatment.

Traceability and Interoperability in Medicines

GLOBALLY an increased focus on traceability of medicines is driven by counterfeit products that have been prevalent in some markets.

With the release of the National Healthcare Interoperability Plan from the Australian Digital Health Agency the question is whether traceability is linked to

The plan focuses on helping to connect Australian healthcare - providers and consumers, the answer is yes. It also highlights the need to outline the standards that will enable the interoperability of systems and traceability of medicines.

The standards for identifying medicines are already defined by the TGA and adopted, as are the standards to automate supply chain processes by most pharmacy wholesalers. There is an opportunity to ensure that standards that enable eventbased traceability are a part of the standards framework under the Agency.

Improving traceability makes better use of scarce resources and ensures that consumers have access to quality medicines, making the healthcare system more efficient and safer.
